By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "You and Bobby Wolff employed limit raises in winning the world's championship. Nearly all experts use them. We have made them part of JACOBY MODERN bidding, since they are very effective and easy to learn."

Jim: "There is nothing difficult about limit raises. Basically, when you get around to raising your partner, the single raise shows support for his suit, but does not invite further action. The jump to three shows very good support and is a strong invitation to game, but not an absolute force. While a jump to game is a bid of game."

Oswald: "North's jump to three spades is one of those limit jump raises. He has 11, or maybe 12, points in support of spades and wants to encourage a bid of game without absolutely committing the hand to that high a contract."

Jim: "If the jump to three were a force, North would have to bid just two spades. South would pass and the hand would play there."

Oswald: "South should have no trouble making four spades. The defense starts with two club tricks and East shifts to a trump. South wins in dummy and should attack diamonds right away. He cashes the ace and king, ruffs a diamond in dummy, enters his hand with a trump, ruffs another diamond, concedes a heart, ruffs a club or heart, draws East's last trump and claims his contract."

Man shot fleeing for freedom

BERLIN (UPI)—East German border guards three days after the signing of the Berlin agreement designed to lessen tension here shot and captured Sunday a young man trying to escape over the wall to the American sector.

Maj. Gen. William Cobb, the American commandant, protested the shooting as "callous disregard for human life" and for the safety of innocent bystanders.

West Berlin's city government denounced the shooting as "inhumane."

Western Allied diplomatic sources said the shooting was proof that East Germans do not plan to relax their measures to halt the flight of refugees to West Berlin despite the Berlin agreement.

Under the agreement, West Berliners get the right to visit East Berlin. But the wall remains and East Germans still are barred from traveling west.

The shooting took place on the eve of East-West German talks to implement the Big Four agreement.
